AKAMAI UNIVERSITY NAMED HAWAII REGIONAL COORDINATOR FOR 2010 INTERNATIONAL MEN'S DAY

CANBERRA, NEW SOUTH WALES, AUSTRALIA – The International Men's Day Coordination Committee recently announced that Akamai University (<http://www.akamaiuniversity.us>), an academic institution which offers one of the most uniquely comprehensive Men's Studies and Fatherhood curricula, has been selected to serve as the Hawaii Regional Coordinator for 2010 International Men's Day (<http://www.international-mens-day.com>) which will be observed worldwide on Friday, 19 November 2010. Located in Hilo, Hawaii, under the leadership of its President, Douglass M. Capogrossi, Ph.D., Akamai University will coordinate the participation of individuals, organizations, institutions, and communities throughout Hawaii in the worldwide observance of 2010 International Men's Day which celebrates and honors the sacrifices that Men have made and continue to make to our families, communities, and our society. The theme for 2010 International Men's Day is "Our Children ... Our Future" – a theme that celebrates the 48 hour partnership that International Men's Day has with Universal Children's Day, which is celebrated on 20th November 2010 and is endorsed by the United Nations. International Men's Day was founded in 1999 by Dr. Jerome Teelucksingh, a History Lecturer at the West Indies University, Trinidad and Tobago, and the Chairman of the International Men's Day Coordination Committee whose membership comprises Warwick Marsh (Australia), Global Coordinator for International Men's Day, Jason Thompson (Australia), Historian and Global Promotions Coordinator for International Men's Day, Uma Challa, International Men's Day Coordinator for India, and Diane A. Sears, International Men's Day Coordinator for the United States of America.
